I think you have wasted enough time and money on this case. Fine Bill and Microsoft heavily and move on. Our country is built on the strong surviving and not hand holding the companies that can't play in the big leagues. Maybe Netscape should have just looked at their business model and watched the finances closer. I do not think the Netscape guy did bad for himself since AOL purchased them. AOL is another company that is a monopoly who put Comuserve and Protopgy basically out of business. Why don't we look into that case? What about ComCast purchasing AT&T broadband to be the largest ISP provider. Do you think that is in my favor?

Lets focus on real issues like economy, homelessness and joblessness. Let Microsoft make the money they want because they provide jobs to more people than the government can understand.
